The Adams Sentinel and General Advertiser.

FURTHER DEVELOPMENTS.

On Monday, December 19, 1850.

We are requested to say that the Store in this place will be closed on Monday the 20th inst., (the Christmas holiday).

The Adams Sentinel.

ECONOMY OF GAS-LIGHT.

In the House of Representatives on Wednesday, Dec. 12, 1850, Mr. Bocock, the Democratic candidate for Congress, moved that the question of the economy of gas-light, and the expense connected with the first introduction of it into the country, be referred to a committee of the whole House.

It is true it is not necessary to address the subject of gas-light from the stand of its fitness for the purpose of illumination, but it does not follow that the same principles can be applied to any other of our common lights. The Committee to which we refer, it is to be understood, is to be charged with the responsibility of the change, and not to be considered as one that will be made without due consideration of the public interest.

There is, at last, no organization of the gas-lights in the United States, and the Speaker was so far from saying that it was necessary to introduce the subject of gas-light before the House, as a matter of economy, that he was determined to leave it to the Committee to which it was referred.

The House adjourned.

SINGULAR MARRIAGE.

A marriage under singular circumstances took place at Sandusky county, Ohio, on the 24th inst. Mr. Bocock, a prominent citizen of that place, was married to Miss Helen Price, a young lady of singular beauty and grace, with whom he had been engaged for several years, and whom he had known for some time.

The ceremony took place on Wednesday, Mr. Bocock and Miss Price being accompanied by a small party of friends, and the marriage was performed in the presence of a large number of the population of the town.

The following is a full and correct account of the proceedings:

The marriage took place in the house of Mr. Bocock, and was performed by the Rev. Mr. Gough, of that place, in the presence of a large number of the inhabitants.

The bride and groom were led into the parlor by Mr. Bocock and Miss Price, and the ceremony was performed in the presence of a large number of the inhabitants.

After the wedding, a banquet was given by Mr. Bocock and Miss Price, and the guests were entertained with a sumptuous repast, and a hearty reception was extended to the bridal pair.

The following is a brief account of the proceedings:

The marriage took place in the house of Mr. Bocock, and was performed by the Rev. Mr. Gough, of that place, in the presence of a large number of the inhabitants.

The bride and groom were led into the parlor by Mr. Bocock and Miss Price, and the ceremony was performed in the presence of a large number of the inhabitants.

After the wedding, a banquet was given by Mr. Bocock and Miss Price, and the guests were entertained with a sumptuous repast, and a hearty reception was extended to the bridal pair.

The following is a brief account of the proceedings:

The marriage took place in the house of Mr. Bocock, and was performed by the Rev. Mr. Gough, of that place, in the presence of a large number of the inhabitants.

The bride and groom were led into the parlor by Mr. Bocock and Miss Price, and the ceremony was performed in the presence of a large number of the inhabitants.

After the wedding, a banquet was given by Mr. Bocock and Miss Price, and the guests were entertained with a sumptuous repast, and a hearty reception was extended to the bridal pair.
A good joke about Harper's Ferry is held at the door of Thaddeus Stevens. Washington held the evening former to a late breakfast meeting, and it was declared that John Brown, "a man," he is, "like a man," was the man with a political, in the solemn, dressing style, you see, he is a devoted hombre; in the family, all in one, his brother wounded, he was known to have fought thirty or forty with his brother, and the brother had been shot three times with his brother.

The Republican Convention was upon the revolution that has been the subject of all the excitement, and of all the excitement, as it has been expressed. As these speeches have mostly been delivered by men who are not great orators, there will be no great demonstration of the party's strength at the convention. The present moment is a good one for the party to show its strength, and it will be seen that the party is really strong.

A correspondent of the London Times says that the great railroad in Germany, this would be much stronger than the railroad in France. The railroad is in use, and there are many more miles of it in Germany than in France.

The Daily News says that the railroad in Germany, this would be much stronger than the railroad in France. The railroad is in use, and there are many more miles of it in Germany than in France.

The Daily News says that the railroad in Germany, this would be much stronger than the railroad in France. The railroad is in use, and there are many more miles of it in Germany than in France.

The Daily News says that the railroad in Germany, this would be much stronger than the railroad in France. The railroad is in use, and there are many more miles of it in Germany than in France.

From our own experience as well as that of other people traveling in Germany, this would be much stronger than the railroad in France. The railroad is in use, and there are many more miles of it in Germany than in France.