Such is one of the first fruits of the election of the influential John W. Voorhis. Thestring in favor of inquiring into the

Shaw Now Show How the Winds Have Shifted

The recent editorials of the New York Herald and the New York Times have been very critical of the administration and its policies. The newspapers have been calling for the resignation of some of the cabinet members, and they have been urging the public to demand answers to some of the questions that have been raised about the administration's actions. The newspapers have been very vocal in their criticism of the administration, and they have been using their platforms to express their concerns and to call for change.

The Opposition papers have been very critical of the administration as well. They have been calling for the resignation of some of the cabinet members, and they have been urging the public to demand answers to some of the questions that have been raised about the administration's actions. The newspapers have been very vocal in their criticism of the administration, and they have been using their platforms to express their concerns and to call for change.

The record of the party in power is one of the most important factors to consider when evaluating the success of a government. In this case, the record of the Federalists is one of the most important factors to consider. The Federalists have been in power for a long time, and they have been very successful in maintaining their power. However, they have also been criticized for their policies, and they have been accused of corruption and inefficiency.

The Opposition papers have been very critical of the Federalists. They have been calling for the resignation of some of the cabinet members, and they have been urging the public to demand answers to some of the questions that have been raised about the administration's actions. The newspapers have been very vocal in their criticism of the administration, and they have been using their platforms to express their concerns and to call for change.

The Opposition papers have been very critical of the administration as well. They have been calling for the resignation of some of the cabinet members, and they have been urging the public to demand answers to some of the questions that have been raised about the administration's actions. The newspapers have been very vocal in their criticism of the administration, and they have been using their platforms to express their concerns and to call for change.