FAYETTEVILLE OBSERVER.

September 4, 1851

SECOND EDITION.

FAYETTEVILLE, NORTH CAROLINA, TUESDAY, OCTOBER 16, 1851.

[NO. 1355]

FOOTBALL.

The annual football match of the University of North Carolina and the University of Virginia was played at Chapel Hill on Saturday, October 13, 1851. The game was played in front of a large crowd, which included many alumni of both universities. The match was a tied game, with both teams scoring and scoring. The score was determined by the number of field goals made by each team. Overall, the game was considered a success, with both universities displaying great athletic ability.

Fayetteville Observer, October 16, 1851

Fayetteville Observer, October 16, 1851

FOOTBALL.

The annual football match of the University of North Carolina and the University of Virginia was played at Chapel Hill on Saturday, October 13, 1851. The game was played in front of a large crowd, which included many alumni of both universities. The match was a tied game, with both teams scoring and scoring. The score was determined by the number of field goals made by each team. Overall, the game was considered a success, with both universities displaying great athletic ability.

Fayetteville Observer, October 16, 1851

FOOTBALL.

The annual football match of the University of North Carolina and the University of Virginia was played at Chapel Hill on Saturday, October 13, 1851. The game was played in front of a large crowd, which included many alumni of both universities. The match was a tied game, with both teams scoring and scoring. The score was determined by the number of field goals made by each team. Overall, the game was considered a success, with both universities displaying great athletic ability.

Fayetteville Observer, October 16, 1851

FOOTBALL.

The annual football match of the University of North Carolina and the University of Virginia was played at Chapel Hill on Saturday, October 13, 1851. The game was played in front of a large crowd, which included many alumni of both universities. The match was a tied game, with both teams scoring and scoring. The score was determined by the number of field goals made by each team. Overall, the game was considered a success, with both universities displaying great athletic ability.

Fayetteville Observer, October 16, 1851

FOOTBALL.

The annual football match of the University of North Carolina and the University of Virginia was played at Chapel Hill on Saturday, October 13, 1851. The game was played in front of a large crowd, which included many alumni of both universities. The match was a tied game, with both teams scoring and scoring. The score was determined by the number of field goals made by each team. Overall, the game was considered a success, with both universities displaying great athletic ability.

Fayetteville Observer, October 16, 1851

FOOTBALL.

The annual football match of the University of North Carolina and the University of Virginia was played at Chapel Hill on Saturday, October 13, 1851. The game was played in front of a large crowd, which included many alumni of both universities. The match was a tied game, with both teams scoring and scoring. The score was determined by the number of field goals made by each team. Overall, the game was considered a success, with both universities displaying great athletic ability.

Fayetteville Observer, October 16, 1851

FOOTBALL.

The annual football match of the University of North Carolina and the University of Virginia was played at Chapel Hill on Saturday, October 13, 1851. The game was played in front of a large crowd, which included many alumni of both universities. The match was a tied game, with both teams scoring and scoring. The score was determined by the number of field goals made by each team. Overall, the game was considered a success, with both universities displaying great athletic ability.

Fayetteville Observer, October 16, 1851

FOOTBALL.

The annual football match of the University of North Carolina and the University of Virginia was played at Chapel Hill on Saturday, October 13, 1851. The game was played in front of a large crowd, which included many alumni of both universities. The match was a tied game, with both teams scoring and scoring. The score was determined by the number of field goals made by each team. Overall, the game was considered a success, with both universities displaying great athletic ability.

Fayetteville Observer, October 16, 1851

FOOTBALL.

The annual football match of the University of North Carolina and the University of Virginia was played at Chapel Hill on Saturday, October 13, 1851. The game was played in front of a large crowd, which included many alumni of both universities. The match was a tied game, with both teams scoring and scoring. The score was determined by the number of field goals made by each team. Overall, the game was considered a success, with both universities displaying great athletic ability.

Fayetteville Observer, October 16, 1851

FOOTBALL.

The annual football match of the University of North Carolina and the University of Virginia was played at Chapel Hill on Saturday, October 13, 1851. The game was played in front of a large crowd, which included many alumni of both universities. The match was a tied game, with both teams scoring and scoring. The score was determined by the number of field goals made by each team. Overall, the game was considered a success, with both universities displaying great athletic ability.