The observations of the President of the United States, as recorded in the report of the Secretary of State, the Hon. W. L. Seward, to the Senate, May 18, 1861, and published in the pages of the "Washington National Intelligencer," of that date, are so strikingly characteristic of the man, and so perfectly in accordance with the information which we have had previously of his character, that they are worth repeating, as an introduction to the following poem, "The President," by Mr. James Russell Lowell.

The President—A. B. C. S.

He is of the President—A B C.

For he is the President.

He is of the President—A B C.

For he is the President.

He is of the President—A B C.
