The Liberator

Wholesale and retail by the hour.

Vol. II. No. 22.

BOSTON, MASS., FRIDAY, JULY 4, 1851.

Whole No. 1069.

The mass of men in both England and the United States are not only ready for the abolition of slavery, but feel that it is their duty to do so. The abolition of slavery in the United States was the object of the American Anti-Slavery Society, the object of the English Anti-Slavery Society, and of the British and Foreign Anti-Slavery Society. The object of the American Anti-Slavery Society was to free the slaves, and to make the law of the land consistent with the principles of the Constitution. The object of the English Anti-Slavery Society was to free the slaves, and to make the law of the land consistent with the principles of the Constitution. The object of the British and Foreign Anti-Slavery Society was to free the slaves, and to make the law of the land consistent with the principles of the Constitution.

Mr. Slavery is not only ready for the abolition of slavery, but feels that it is his duty to do so. The abolition of slavery in the United States was the object of the American Anti-Slavery Society, the object of the English Anti-Slavery Society, and of the British and Foreign Anti-Slavery Society. The object of the American Anti-Slavery Society was to free the slaves, and to make the law of the land consistent with the principles of the Constitution. The object of the English Anti-Slavery Society was to free the slaves, and to make the law of the land consistent with the principles of the Constitution. The object of the British and Foreign Anti-Slavery Society was to free the slaves, and to make the law of the land consistent with the principles of the Constitution.

Mr. Slavery is not only ready for the abolition of slavery, but feels that it is his duty to do so. The abolition of slavery in the United States was the object of the American Anti-Slavery Society, the object of the English Anti-Slavery Society, and of the British and Foreign Anti-Slavery Society. The object of the American Anti-Slavery Society was to free the slaves, and to make the law of the land consistent with the principles of the Constitution. The object of the English Anti-Slavery Society was to free the slaves, and to make the law of the land consistent with the principles of the Constitution. The object of the British and Foreign Anti-Slavery Society was to free the slaves, and to make the law of the land consistent with the principles of the Constitution.

Mr. Slavery is not only ready for the abolition of slavery, but feels that it is his duty to do so. The abolition of slavery in the United States was the object of the American Anti-Slavery Society, the object of the English Anti-Slavery Society, and of the British and Foreign Anti-Slavery Society. The object of the American Anti-Slavery Society was to free the slaves, and to make the law of the land consistent with the principles of the Constitution. The object of the English Anti-Slavery Society was to free the slaves, and to make the law of the land consistent with the principles of the Constitution. The object of the British and Foreign Anti-Slavery Society was to free the slaves, and to make the law of the land consistent with the principles of the Constitution.

Mr. Slavery is not only ready for the abolition of slavery, but feels that it is his duty to do so. The abolition of slavery in the United States was the object of the American Anti-Slavery Society, the object of the English Anti-Slavery Society, and of the British and Foreign Anti-Slavery Society. The object of the American Anti-Slavery Society was to free the slaves, and to make the law of the land consistent with the principles of the Constitution. The object of the English Anti-Slavery Society was to free the slaves, and to make the law of the land consistent with the principles of the Constitution. The object of the British and Foreign Anti-Slavery Society was to free the slaves, and to make the law of the land consistent with the principles of the Constitution.