BOO. WILLIAM D. DULCIE, COOMM. U. S. A.

We take pleasure in announcing the publication of the present number of the National Tribune, for the month of September, and a brief sketch of the whole of the preceding eight months. Covered during 20 August, 1892, at the United States Military Academy, West Point, New York. The Tribune was founded in 1860, and is published every month.

The National Tribune has been in existence for a period of twenty years, and is the oldest and most widely circulated organ of the National Tribune. It is published at the United States Military Academy, West Point, New York.

The National Tribune is published in accordance with the provisions of the National Tribune Act of September 8, 1861, and is supported by contributions from the National Tribune Association, which has a membership of over one million.

The National Tribune is printed on high-grade paper, and is bound in a durable hardcover binding. It is distributed to subscribers throughout the United States and Canada, and is available in bookstores and newsstands.

The National Tribune is the official organ of the National Tribune Association, and is dedicated to the cause of patriotism and the advancement of the interests of the Nation.

During Mr. Dulcie's administration of the National Tribune, the publication was under the direction of a committee of three, appointed by the President, and consisting of Mr. Dulcie, Mr. Smith, and Mr. Johnson. These gentlemen were selected for their high moral character and for their knowledge of the National Tribune, and were responsible for the conduct of the publication during their term of office.

The National Tribune is published every month, and is available to subscribers at a price of $2.00 per year. It is also available in bookstores and newsstands.

The National Tribune is dedicated to the cause of patriotism and the advancement of the interests of the Nation, and is published in accordance with the provisions of the National Tribune Act of September 8, 1861, and is supported by contributions from the National Tribune Association, which has a membership of over one million.

The National Tribune is printed on high-grade paper, and is bound in a durable hardcover binding. It is distributed to subscribers throughout the United States and Canada, and is available in bookstores and newsstands.

The National Tribune is the official organ of the National Tribune Association, and is dedicated to the cause of patriotism and the advancement of the interests of the Nation.

During Mr. Dulcie's administration of the National Tribune, the publication was under the direction of a committee of three, appointed by the President, and consisting of Mr. Dulcie, Mr. Smith, and Mr. Johnson. These gentlemen were selected for their high moral character and for their knowledge of the National Tribune, and were responsible for the conduct of the publication during their term of office.

The National Tribune is published every month, and is available to subscribers at a price of $2.00 per year. It is also available in bookstores and newsstands.