THE ADAMS SENTINEL AND GENERAL ADVERTISER.

THE ADAMS SENTINEL.

TUESDAY, AUGUST 28, 1860.

[Articles and editorials discussing various local and national issues of the time, including political candidates and developments in the United States Civil War.]

Health of the President.

The white hair of the President is more strikingly characteristic of his age and the time. The President's hair is now more prominent than ever, and the peculiar grayish tinge of it has become more evident in the face of the President. He has been seen in public, and his hair is now quite prominent. The President's hair is now quite prominent, and his hair is now quite prominent. He has been seen in public, and his hair is now quite prominent.

[Additional articles and editorials continue with the same format, discussing various local and national issues of the time, including political candidates and developments in the United States Civil War.]