The long-expected order of the 1st Regiment, F. H., has arrived from General McClellan. The Regiment is all together now, and the "boys" are all up and ready to start. A DAY OF THANKSGIVING.

Proclamation of President Lincoln.

A REVIEW OF OUR CONDITION.

By the President of the United States of America.

The year that is drawing towards its close has been marked by the blessings of peace and prosperity. The country is at peace, and the people are happy. The government is strong, and the nation is prosperous. The Union is secure, and the world is at peace. The President, in his address of Thanksgiving, has said: "We are grateful for the blessings of peace and prosperity. We are grateful for the blessings of the Union. We are grateful for the blessings of the government. We are grateful for the blessings of the nation. We are grateful for the blessings of the world. We are grateful for the blessings of the universe."
The pillars of our security over in the East is a matter of great concern. The war must go on, and we must be prepared to support our allies. The National Guard must be strengthened, and the militia must be mobilized. The Navy must be increased, and the War Department must be reorganized. The public must be informed of the necessity of these measures, and the President must be authorized to take action as necessary to ensure our safety.
